What does it mean?

C<sup>A</sup>N it be possible that a successful remedy has been contrived in the improvements of the human frame? I suppose so; what else can it be? It is a strange delusion or fraud certainly there must be some and surely As concerning the efficacy of any agent, the Publick best judges in the ruling of the Vegetable Universal Pill and hearing the humours of every class and condition in his power remarks of much importance, as follows: Showing however, that one could not injure less the immortal good life, than a cold inactivity in a healthy manner, while at least doing something towards guiding the efficacy of which disease, that it is possible may be even much more than probable, that it could answer well and aid the use of the said Bradreth's Pill. I was engaged in the first place, in taking the agency, or of leaving anything to do with the quack-doctor-stuff; as I then could not, but was reasonably inclined at least some good might be possible with a great deal of faith and confidence to a few dozen cases being left, and allowed my name to be used in an advertisement as a agent. At first, the results were moderate, and for a long time, so, but by many personal recommendations. The demand however, has been constantly increased, and the sale of their cures so uniformly general that I cannot longer withhold the opinion, that Bradreth's Pill possess a desirable quality, and what is said of them by persons who have referred to their good results in the general advertisement may be probably true and correct, not alone in their belief. Recommendation seems but to be needed, much longer through the press, for a whole community are speaking most favourably of the use and benefit. It is known that it may be charged that there is an artful contrivance in my recommendation, to be some the worse epithet for it, as to give so strong a testimony to say that any medicine is good, is not. But when all the Bradreth's Pill have been sold with apparent success as an instant to nature, we are disposed to attribute it to such means. By means of the regularly advertised agents. And one word to them. A pretended travelling, manufacturing Sub-Pill like General Agent, has even gone so far in his attempts with the spurious pills as to pretend to establish new agencies, and newly supply some old ones at reduced prices for cash down. Recollect no agent buys the Pill, or pays till sold, and always at uniform price. No new agencies that I know of, as through the occupancy of such Office Holders under Dr. General Bradreth's. Administration would be encouraged. This is a very bad character, and the institution of the people evaded, pretent, and evaded, and come together. Now let us no more give such name but to genuine Bradreth's Pill, and the Proprietor will not sell well, and their constituents are preserved for the benefit of future generations.

A new supply just received. Address at the State of S. E. HOWARD.
